Don't cry

~even though you tears might be beautiful I can't stand seeing you cry in front of me~

During a TV performance of their new single "Boku no kimochi" Teppei suddenly started to cry. Big tears were welling out of his eyes, too many to dry them inconspicuously. Eiji, standing next to Teppei on stage, playing the guitar, would have given him a handkerchief or better wipe Teppei's tears away himself, hugging him and telling him that everything would be fine again. Actually he didn't know exactly why Teppei was crying, but each tear felt like a sting to Eiji's heart. He suddenly felt so helpless, he wanted to comfort the other boy and if they hadn't been in a live show he would have dumped his guitar the next moment and head to Teppei just to make him stop crying. But the show went on and with all these thoughts going on in his head Eiji listened to Teppei singing, but even though the younger boy's voice sounded shaken they could finish their song quite successfully. Teppei smiled at the audience and then sniffled and wiped his face with the sleeve of his coat. The very next moment Eiji took his hand and without even looking at any other person around any longer he dragged Teppei with him behind the stage to their dressing room and hugged him tightly... and Teppei instantly stopped crying ...
